TIAO's survey on the ## impact of step 3, post-step 3, and border reopening on tourism businesses

TIAO is conducting a survey to collect up-to-date information on the impact of Step 3, post-Step 3, and border reopening on tourism businesses. As the border reopens and public health restrictions are being eased, it is necessary to gather information to demonstrate the tourism industry's continued need for government support even as tourism revenues rise.

Complete the survey

The purpose of this survey is to understand to what extent tourism revenues have improved since key reopening dates were announced as well as business perspectives on staffing challenges, proof of vaccination (e.g., vaccine passports), commercial insurance rates, and challenges to recovery. TIAO seeks your assistance in providing this high-level reporting so that they can advocate on your behalf.

Take a journey back in time on the Lucy Maud Montgomery Trail

The Lucy Maud Montgomery Trail is a safe, historic, self-guided driving tour through the countryside in the Uxbridge area. Lucy Maud Montgomery, famous author of ‘Anne of Green Gables’, lived and wrote in Leaskdale from 1911 to 1926. This new “trail” features 15 stops in Uxbridge, Leaskdale, and Zephyr that were significant to Lucy Maud Montgomery’s (Maud) life while she lived and raised her family during World War I and the flu pandemic of 1918. The accompanying podcast creates an immersive experience utilizing excerpts of Maud’s journals narrated by local actors, Conrad Boyce and Jennifer Carroll. In addition, the podcast references the historical significance of the various stops while providing directions for the journey.

Featured stops will be hosting Maud-themed attractions and activities. The Leaskdale Manse, home of Maud, is providing tea and tour packages, as well as luncheon teas, featuring special guests; and kids can enjoy traditional home-made ice cream and Cavendish Cat-themed crafts. At the Uxbridge Historical Centre visitors can see three buildings that were relevant to Maud and her stories, as well as a Signature Red Cross Quilt with Maud’s married name sewn in. Local businesses are joining in on the fun and offering special products.

This summer, The Bridge Social is offering Anne’s favourite Organic Cold Brew Raspberry Cordial, as well as a pretty pink natural Lip & Cheek Rouge in the shade ‘Maud’. At Blue Heron Books, kids can write a letter to their “kindred spirit” on custom Anne stationery, play a game of hopscotch, and take a picture in the Anne-themed photo booth. Concession 6 Studio and Greenmantle Pottery will be showcasing relevant art and memorabilia. Finally, thirsty travellers can enjoy a specially crafted raspberry cider along the route at Banjo Cider.

The Lucy Maud Montgomery Trail was produced by the Township of Uxbridge in partnership with Central Counties Tourism, Durham Tourism, and the L.M. Montgomery Society of Ontario. It is being promoted as part of the Anne and Maud Experience at AnneandMaud.ca, in partnership with Pickering Museum, which is providing the Anne Experience at the Pickering Museum. The entire Anne and Maud Experience provides a full day of activities in Durham Region.
